

Last cold ride? That would be nice!

38 degrees and damp pavement from a light rain during the night makes for pretty pictures, but I think we're all ready for the warmer days ahead.

Kevin, Kevin, Marcus & Karen this morning, with nobody in a mood to fly up Kings, so... we didn't! I hung back again with pilot Kevin, who'd made the mistake of doing some running during his layover in Sydney. Why do people run?

Upon returning home, we were wondering, how soon do we get to ride without base layers and legwarmers again? Looks like that might be this Sunday. 84 degrees forecast! I'm ready.